Integrated Engineering students receive a multidisciplinary undergraduate engineering education, with a focus on engineering design. Students develop knowledge and skills in Chemical and Biological, Civil, Electrical, Materials, Mechanical and Mining Engineering during their academic studies. They take courses in material, solid mechanics, fluid mechanics and systems involving biological, chemical and electro-mechanical components.